LANGUAGE LAB

REPORT

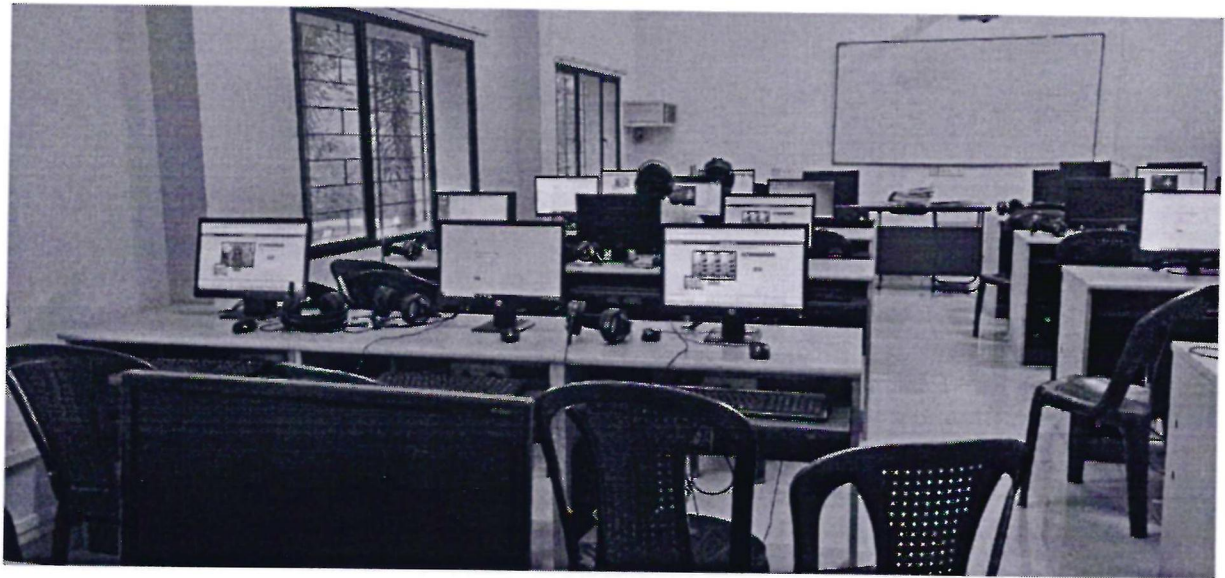

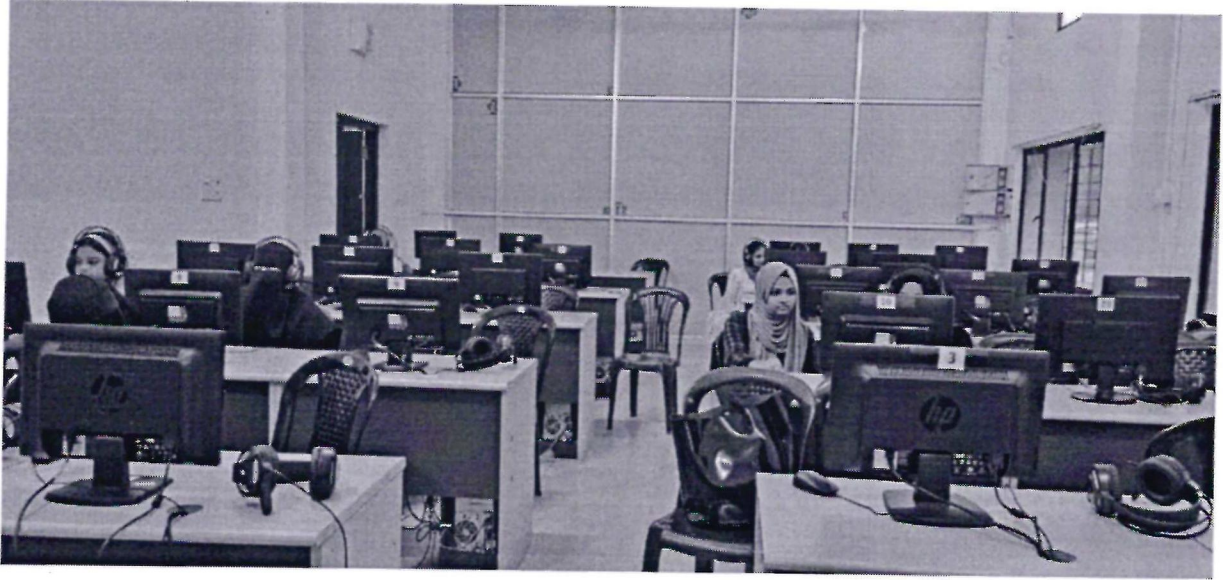

The first semester students are given a course on language improvement and communication skills from June to August as part of an evening class schedule in order to improve their language abilities. The class was split up into 15-student batches. As the person in charge of their common paper functional grammar and communication in English, Miss. Jouhara K. P, took on the duty of managing the students entry and exit by batch. The teacher made sure that every student in the group had the chance to learn about and listen to the phonetic representation of the letters as well as other communication techniques.

Miss. Raheena P is in charge of the batch of students in the third trimester. They received training in language improvement and communication skills through the language lab systems. The students are divided into three batches and are instructed to participate in the class either after 3:30 PM or during their free hours. They focus more on the grammar and usage section, which includes information on tenses, their applications, and the grammatical roles of articles.

The fifth semester students were placed under Mr. Umar Farooq's supervision and he organised groups of students to use the language lab. The relevance of the speech organs and the creation of speech sounds is explained to the students. The course was offered in the month of January and was benefited by 60 students.
