FIELD TRIP TO A BIOGAS PLANT

A field trip to an organic farm at Aroor was organized for the B Sc Microbiology students by the Department of Microbiology on 8th September 2016. The students were accompanied by Ms. Shainy N K, Ms. Asha B and Ms. Farha Baramy, Faculties, Department of Microbiology and Ms. Abitha V, Lab assistant, Department of Microbiology. The farm was owned by Mr Ilyas, a 'Karshakashri' award winning farmer, who strictly employs organic farming methods in his field. The farm comprised of a vermi-composting plant, a biogas plant, a cattle and bird farm, cultivation of varieties of crops and trees. A large part of his property was turned in to a natural forest with a rare collection of medicinal trees. The farm was completely free of plasticwastes.

Mr. Ilyas was kind enough to give fruits and vegetables to the students. He also gave some samples of plants from his collection and he also taught the students how to plant them and gave a detailed description about the plants. Mr. Ilyas explained about the vermi-composting plant were all the organic materials from his house, agricultural land and cow dung from his cattle farm were dumped into a well cemented pit and the earthworms from the previous batches are collected and again added to the new batch. He explained us the process of vermi-composting and how he recollects the earthworm after the whole process.
